The Spiritual Dimension of Palliative Care

An educational opportunity to explore spirituality

Designed for

Doctors, Registered Nurses, Enrolled Nurses, Chaplains, Allied Health Professionals, Assistants in Nursing, Patient Care Assistants

Overview

The spiritual dimension of palliative care is recognised as fundamental element of healthcare assessments alongside physical, psychological, cultural and social needs. (National Palliative Care Standards 2018)

This participatory workshop provides opportunity for any health professional to engage in exploring the importance of spirituality in self and in others, and how to hold discussions to assess the spiritual needs and values of all persons receiving palliative care.

Learning outcomes

- Develop a deeper understanding of spirituality in the context of health, palliative and patient-centred care
- Develop confidence in engaging in spiritual conversations with patients, families and carers
- Explore the meaning of spirituality for self and others
- Explore and describe different belief systems and major religions of the world
- Recognise the importance of spirituality for all persons receiving palliative care
